

RECONNECTING RAINBOWS PRESS

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Pre-Orders Open 1st September for Tubelines, the New Poetry Collection by Kestral Gaian

Fifty Poems. Eleven Lines. One City. This is the poetry of motion.

LONDON, UK – Reconnecting Rainbows Press is proud to announce that pre-orders for Tubelines, the latest poetry collection from award-winning author and playwright Kestral Gaian, will open on 1st September 2025. A lyrical love letter to the London Underground and the millions of journeys it holds, Tubelines captures the rhythm, chaos, humour, and quiet humanity of life below the city.

Written over five years and across eight battered notebooks, these fifty poems travel through 272 stations and eleven iconic lines, tracing moments of connection, identity, and observation from the Jubilee's rush-hour crush to the late-night stillness of the Piccadilly.

"The Tube is its own city within a city," says Gaian. "It's the space between where you are and where you're going and, sometimes, it's the only place where a thought or a poem can happen."

About the Author

Kestral Gaian is an award-winning author, poet, and playwright whose work spans fiction, theatre, and non-fiction. Known for her lyrical style, queer narratives, and interdisciplinary approach to storytelling, her writing often explores the intersections of identity, place, and human connection.
